

Passport to Safety

Introducing the Guernsey Building Trades Employers Association

Passport to Safety Scheme

What is Passport to Safety?

- The Passport to Safety is a scheme run by the GBTEA which allows employers in building related trades to demonstrate that their staff have a basic understanding of construction site health & safety requirements.
- Candidates take a PC based multiple choice questionnaire covering legislation and best practice affecting construction safety

What's involved with Passport to Safety?

- Question sets are available for candidates to study before taking the test.
- There are 3 levels of the Passport to Safety
Visitor --- Operative --- Supervisor
- Candidates need to choose which level best covers their responsibilities.

Why Join Passport to Safety?

- To improve the H&S Awareness of your staff.
- To demonstrate to your customers and clients that your staff have undertaken a recognised form of health & safety training.
- Some larger firms now require subcontractor employees to have Passport to Safety before they are allowed on sites.
- Staff who have taken some level of training are less likely to suffer work related accidents and injuries

What you get, and the Benefits?

- Successful candidates receive a robust plastic photo id: card and certificate.
- Tamper proof and easy to verify.
- Local scheme administered by GBTEA with test questions designed in consultation with the Guernsey Health & Safety Executive office
- Widespread industry recognition.
- Cards now valid for 5 years
